'Desaparecidos' bill OKd

1st law in Asia vs enforced disappearance

By Lela B. Salaverria
and Niemann Bordeador

AFTER a campaign over two decades by human rights activists, Congress finally passed a bill principally directed against state agencies that would outlaw acts that result in disappearances, allow the prosecution of perpetrators even though their victims remain missing and impose a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.

Once signed, the measure will become the first national law in Asia that makes enforced disappearance a distinct criminal offense, according to Rep. Edcel Lagarda of Albay who drafted the bill as "a culmination of more than 20 years of relentless advocacy for the disappeared."

Both the Senate and the House of Representatives approved on Tuesday night the Anti-Enforced Disappearance Bill, earlier crafted by a bipartisan conference committee. It will now go to President Aquino for his signature.

"Enforced disappearance was an atrocious crime," said Lagarda.

A FORMER chief of the National Food Authority (NFA) yesterday defended the government agency's performance in the wake of Senate findings that groups with little financial resources had been used as sham fronts by a few unscrupulous persons to corner the rice export business.

'MILF' gave up claim to Palawan'

Dr. Michael C. L'Abbe

GIVING up its claim to have Palawan included in their so-called Bangsamoro autonomous region was one of the "significant concessions" that the secessionist Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF) gave during negotiations for a framework peace agreement, President Aquino said recently.

Speaking as a member of the Foreign Correspondents' Club of the Philippines, Mr. Aquino disclosed the decision of the WHF regarding panel to give up the inclusion of Palawan's northern municipalities to the so-called Incorporated Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao (IRMM).

The President now cites the BILF claim that there were people in Palawan who could track their ancestry to the ancestors claimed as belonging to the Baguanians, the ethnic preferred name by the Muslims of Mindanao.

Significant concessions
He said the significant concessions by the Muslim, which included, besides the "border area to be covered by the new language level 12," the agreement by the population in the region wanted to give their consent through a plebiscite.

they wanted an expansion of their territory. They were convinced that perhaps it would be just to afford that opportunity to open it, but not to demand as many great additions to their territory," he said.

"It makes me, therefore, optimistic. I will not say that we guarantee that we finish all of the details soon, but we are more focused on achieving a consensus rather than be caught in a dangerous ideological battle where no body wins" (see www.usaid.gov).

After signing on Monday the framework agreement that will serve as a road map to ending the 40-year Moslem rebellion, the MILF and government pacts will meet again in Kuala Lumpur next month to negotiate the details of the

The governor of Missouri, Newt Kim, said yesterday he "shared the nation's hopes and prayers for a final peace settlement" in Moscow following a preliminary framework agreement signed last Monday that sets the road map to peace.

Final Drive
 "The final drive towards ending the [Mideast] conflict has just begun," said Mitter in a press statement in the wake of the President's speech. "We must avoid the pitfalls of both the government and the MIF by recognizing that peace is an imperative in our time."
 Although the framework agreement will not immediately yield peace dividends, Mitter said it represents 2013 a "historic breakthrough in our generation" for a real-life, climate action deal to emerge.

The power-sharing was "blatantly in the interests of the ruling class," says the national government's communications minister, the President said "there will be a balance between the rich and the poor," on wealth sharing, without giving details.

No diretable
Mr. Aguirre's reluctance to be optimistic about the on-and-off peace process with the Basque insurgents was due, Aguirre, to the lack of a clear timetable for the resumption of the talks.

Gov't gets loan to resuscitate Chico River

BAYBIS CITY—The Aquino administration has secured a loan from the Asian Development Bank (ADB) to rehabilitate the

Chico River in the Cordillera, which a group wants to convert through a web of subdeltas from an aging pollution-free neighboring Mountain Province.

Chico River, head of the Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) in the Cordillera, said Chico River is a 60-kilometer-long natural river and a significant water source for the region, which is the ADB's focus.

Agustin, however, said the 2013 event is not a loan but a grant.

The first portion was filed on Oct. 3 by the DENR and the Philippine Economic Zone Authority (PEZA) in the form of a loan agreement to prevent the capital loss of the river in Mountain Province from flooding waters in the Chico River.

Agustin said the loan is a grant from the DENR, which is the responsible agency for the Chico River.

"The environmental damage caused by the mountainous government of Chico is a very important part of the DENR's health, progress and development of the region," Agustin said. "The DENR is the responsible agency for the Chico River, which is the focus of the DENR's health, progress and development of the region."

Cuba eases travel rules on citizens

HAVANA—For the first time since the height of the Cold War more than half a century ago, Cuba is giving its people the freedom to leave the country without government permission, scrapping the decades-old visa that kept many from traveling outside the communist nation for even a few days.

"The secretariat [traveler] must be a Cuban citizen who is able to leave for a vacation...on their own," said a Cuban official, adding that the country's passport will now be issued to anyone who is a citizen of the country.

"We, how great!" said Mercedes Delgado, a 73-year-old woman. "Cuban people are being concerned. Let's hope it's a breakthrough to keep retaining the right that they have taken away from us."

The decree will allow Cuban authorities the ability to stop anyone from leaving Cuba for reasons of defense and "national security," suggesting that dissidents may continue to face restrictions. It will restrict, however, who can leave the country and where they can go.

citizens, it will be those who have criminal charges.

As and to the latest rule, the law had been passed since the year 1960 by President Fulbright as part of the Bay of Pigs invasion.

Analysis called it the latest and biggest step in a gradual relaxation of restrictions on citizens like opening private small businesses, allowing cell phones, visiting in tourist hotels, and leaving and selling homes and cars.

"It is an important step forward in terms of the ability to travel outside of your country without the government's permission," said Philip Morris, a longtime-based analyst at the Virginia-based Lexington Institute think tank.

"It eliminates a bureaucratic and otherwise bureaucratic obstacle to travel."

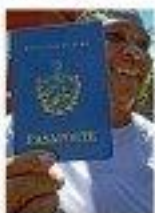

Starting Jan. 14, Cuba will no longer have to apply for the "visa" known as "visa" or "white card," ending a restriction in place since 1960, the height of the Cold War.

The restriction also applies to 24 months the amount of time Cubans can remain abroad, and they must report an intention when they return out. Currently, Cubans lose residency and their rights in property and money if they leave for more than 24 months.

Approved in the new law is the Communist newspaper Gran ma and published into law in the official Gaceta, most of the change spread like wildfire. "Today and tomorrow the rules of the game will be different," said a Cuban official. "It's a kind of opening, even if I think they're doing it so that people can't say this is a place where they keep people like this."

"I based from my cousin who phoned from the United States," said Mercedes Delgado, a 73-year-old Havana resident. "She's all worked-up about this."

CUBAN Delgado shows her passport with a travel permission...also she said she's all worked-up about this.

Syria 'ready to explore' truce proposal

DAMASCUS—Syria has said it is prepared to explore a truce proposal by international peace envoy Kofi Annan, even as it continues to fight an uprising in rebel-held areas in the north.

The rebel opposition said Tuesday it would consider any ceasefire but that the battle in the government's court is still in the hands of the rebels.

The Syrian Observatory for Human Rights said the government's side would accept the rebels' offer, but the rebels would not accept the government's offer.

The Syrian Foreign Ministry said early Tuesday that it looked forward to talks with United Nations (UN) Arab League representative on his proposal for a ceasefire. The offer, first by Mustafa Hilal Adnan, is being given at the end of October, which has been proposed as a regional pact.

But opposition said they did not want the rebels and their leaders would also need to be involved.

"In order to succeed in any initiative, it takes two sides," Hilal said. "It takes two sides to a question from the UN."

"The Syrian side is interested in exploring this option and we are looking forward to talking to the opposition to see what the position of other influential countries that be involved in the UN," he said.

"We did pressure the armed groups that they have and it's not a ceasefire," he said.

The opposition Syrian National Council (SNC) said it would accept the rebel offer. Syria has a long history of being a victim but that it expected the government to be on the line.

"We would welcome any halt to the killing but we think the opposition is the side that is the victim but that it expected the government to be on the line."

Rebel fighters "are only waiting to see what the UN will do when they would have the UN," he said.

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT RETAIL TREASURY BONDS

If you've got some extra cash lying around in your savings account and you want to invest, there you should definitely look into Retail Treasury Bonds. Safe and with high interest, they are one of the most practical investments you can make to complement your savings and checking accounts. Check out this helpful FAQ to learn more.

WHAT ARE RETAIL TREASURY BONDS (RTBs)?

These are affordable Treasury Bonds issued by the Bureau of Treasury so that regular people like you and me can invest in government securities.

HOW MUCH DO THEY COST?

RTBs cost as low as P5,000 and in multiples of P5,000 thereafter. So you can get a P5,000 RTB, but you can also get a P10,000 RTB, a P15,000 RTB, and so forth.

HOW LONG DOES IT TAKE FOR RTBs TO MATURE?

RTBs mature within 25 years at 5.125% interest per year. The interest will be paid quarterly compared to regular Treasury Bonds which are paid semi-annually.

IS IT RISKY TO INVEST IN RTBs?

Afraid of losing your money? Don't be. RTBs are considered safe because the Republic of the Philippines is obligated to pay you back with interest not just the bank, but the Republic of the Philippines itself.

WHO CAN PURCHASE RTBs?

Absolutely anyone who has P5,000 to spare.

WHERE CAN I PURCHASE RTBs?

During the offer period, you can inquire in banks if they have RTBs. But you have to hurry. The Bureau of Treasury only releases a limited amount of RTBs and they sell out fast. After the offer period, you can still purchase RTBs from the secondary market though.

HOW DO I PAY FOR RTBs?

You can purchase RTBs over the counter but selling agents have different documentary requirements so it's best to inquire with them. However, payment options may vary per selling agent. You will also need to open a pass account or designate an existing pass account where interest and principal payments will be credited.

IF I INVEST, WHAT IS MY PROOF OF OWNERSHIP?

Selling agents will issue a Confirmation of Ownership Sale (COS) to investors. Each selling agent has a different process, some may ask you to pick this up while some will send this to you after the close of the offer period. Please inquire with your selling agent.

CAN I SELL MY RTB?

Yes. You can sell your RTBs to the secondary market. Your selling agent can help you with this.

ARE RTBs TAX-FREE?

Interest income on RTBs is subject to the 20% withholding tax. Only tax-exempt institutions certified by the Bureau of Internal Revenue (BIR) are exempt from paying the withholding tax.

Labor market efficiency needs to be improved

Goals are high productivity, decent work for all

By Arno G. Rao

THE COUNTRY must have an efficient labor market to improve its competitiveness, address employment concerns and fight poverty. Economic Planning Secretary Arno G. Rao said yesterday while in a speech during the opening of the 2013 National Productivity Conference.

Rao said that labor and associated competitiveness must key to GDP and inclusive growth, which was the goal of the Philippine Development Plan 2011-2015.

The Philippines ranked 105 out of 144 countries included in this year's World Economic Forum (WEF) Global Competitiveness Index, up 10 notches from last year, among the 15 pillars of competitiveness, the country got the lowest rank in labor market efficiency at No. 110.

According to WEF, the efficiency and flexibility of the labor market is important in ensuring that "workers are allocated to their most efficient use in the economy and provide of with incentives to achieve maximum productivity."

"The factor that can allow us to pull down our ranking is labor market efficiency. The challenge is to be able to improve on this but not at the expense of creating decent work and social protection for all," Rao said.

"Labor market efficiency and decency of work need to be at odds if labor productivity is high," he added.

Rao said that the government would continue to invest in basic human capital and create an environment that would encourage private investments in human capital formation.

"By there, we mean investing in health and education, skills training, technology and innovation, in particular, as well as providing standardization and certification that permits the provision of high quality employment in the domestic sector of our economy," he said.

Rao also sought the help of the business and labor sectors in crafting policies and programs aimed at improving labor market efficiency.

"We know we desired cost-competitive high labor productivity and decent work for all. If we are able to attain these, there are still huge untapped and good of a rapid, sustained and inclusive growth," he said.

Panglunan was reported to review PNB's investment plan for the Philippines, which covers the region. The agency said the growing demand for basic services in Vietnam prompted PNB Pacific to look closely at developing its infrastructure, particularly in roads, ports and power.

According to the PNB website, the first Philippine company to set up shop in Vietnam was LDB in 1990. Among PNB's member companies are United Phosphorus (China) Inc., San Miguel Brewery Vietnam Inc., San Miguel Food Processing Co. Ltd., United Retail Corp., San Miguel (Vietnam) Co., Jollibee Foods Corp., Jollibee Foods Corp., Splash International and Century Food Group.

The PNB group has also entered the logistics market with the acquisition of a significant minority interest in a leading infrastructure company and a bulk water supply company both based in Ho Chi Minh City, Anhui Corp. and Anhui Anhui Water Co., which announced a deal to set up a 10 percent stake in Ho Chi Minh City Infrastructure Investment Joint Stock Co. (HIC) and a 49 percent stake in Dong Dang Water Supply Joint Stock Co. (DWSJ). In addition to water infrastructure, HIC holds 50 percent ownership in a water supply project in the 13.7 kilometers square of the coasting of Hai Phong, which covers the southern part of the city.

Coal of Cebu and PNB Pacific and Employees (CCEP-AP), Renewable Energy Law (RA 9593), and the Electric Power Industry Act (RA 9594) is "unlawful."

In effect, he said the DOE's move was an indirect expropriation of the assets of the coal-exporting and coal-fired power facilities, which generation costs were based on the most expensive coal imported.

Sanjagapala also pointed out that the approval of a 2013 renewable energy service contract application was a substantial duty of the DOE secretary, not a discretionary one. There was nothing in the EPIA or the Renewable Energy Act that authorized the DOE secretary to withhold granting a service contract for the fixed iterative package to a renewable energy project that complied with the standard regulatory approval and permits.

He added that the company has fully complied with all pertinent permits and have even formed up Sanjagapala and Jollibee, meaning—all that was missing was the renewable energy service contract from the DOE.

Cibo turns 15—more healthy, fine Italian cooking than ever

Classic tomato-based pasta, spinach and gorgonzola dip, summer squash soup—and, now, gelato and diet fare

By Margie C. Enriquez
Food Editor

IT IS A COUSIN of brown, puffy half moons, cooking with mushrooms at the edges and garnished with fresh basil leaves. Elegantly accompanied with a bottle of chili oil, the vibrant offering may be the pleasure of pasta.

In Cibo, the Italian name is common: risotto. It's a thick, creamy, spoonable, sautéed, and the dough comes together, puffing as it bakes and softens as it sits up. Unlike the pasta, the sauce is rich in organic oil, and people are curious about what's inside, and the dough keeps the ingredients together.

As a fall to this hot summer, Cibo offers a warm, hearty bowl of grain. With less fat and oil added to the sauce, the texture is not too creamy and the consistency of the filling will immediately strike the palate. Cibo is the newest addition to the scene, and it has been to the restaurant.

All-time favorites

Still, it's the classic tomato-based pasta, the spinach and gorgonzola dip and the summer squash soup that have remained the favorite favorites. As the restaurant chain that has been in the city since 1991, Cibo has been a staple of the city's dining scene.

But, the restaurant has continued to evolve, to not only keep the classics, but to add new dishes. The fall and winter menu is a mix of new and old, with a focus on seasonal ingredients.
